Discover Lancaster County's Scenic Northwest Waterfront

From the time of Native people, land and water routes along the Susquehanna River have been essential to American transportation and helped define settlement patterns. The river trail traces the route of Pennsylvania's Main Line Canal and uses some of the original towpath.

Columbia—The trail's southern gateway is the Columbia Crossing River Trails Center, a visitor facility managed by Susquehanna Heritage for Columbia Borough. On the waterfront in Columbia River Park, the trails center includes visitor information, exhibits, and rest rooms. The park offers scenic views, power boat and paddlecraft launches, picnic areas, and a seasonal outfitter. Park visitors also get a close-up look at the 1930 Veterans Memorial Bridge, along with the piers of a covered bridge burned in the Civil War to stop a Confederate invasion. Columbia is home to museums, art galleries, antique shops, restaurants, and a market house.

Chickies Rock County Park—At the south end of this 420+ acre park, trail travelers pass through Point Rock Tunnel, an abandoned railroad route carved through 180 feet of solid rock. The trail runs along the former Kerbaugh Lake, now a reclaimed woodland and meadow area, on the beds of an old canal and railroad, including a re-constructed bridge over Chiques Creek. Towering 220 feet above is Chickies Rock, a vertical quartzite outcropping popular with climbers. The rock is home to some of Pennsylvania's oldest fossils, Scolithus lineris, the 600-million-year-old borings of a marine worm. The park includes the ruins of several anthracite-fired iron furnaces that were part of a once-thriving 19th century industrial complex known as "Little Pittsburgh."

Marietta—Steps from the trail in the river town of Marietta are beautiful historic buildings and many great restaurants, pubs, and shops. Historically, Marietta was known for its canal, lumber yards, planing mills, and pig iron furnaces. Along the trail is the Musselman-Vesta Iron Furnace Center, the office building for a furnace operation from 1868 to the 1920's. The building is now managed by Rivertownes PA USA as a public education center about the area's iron-making heritage. Also near the trail is the privately owned Chickies Furnace No. 2 engine house (1854-1899).

East Donegal Township—This section of trail runs through scenic river woodlands and farmland. A long trail section traverses Riverfront Park, a key visitor access point that boasts beautiful views of the Susquehanna. The park offers a large pavilion, promenade, boat ramp, and places for picnicking and exploring nature. Extensive wetlands in the park were restored through the USDA Natural Resources Conservation Service's Wetland Reserve Program.

Conoy Township—Just off the northern reach of the trail are the communities of Bainbridge and Falmouth. Bainbridge is home to the historic Haldeman Mansion, where internationally known scientist Samuel S. Haldeman was born. This part of the trail includes the scenic Shocks Mill Railroad Bridge Walkway and the White Cliffs of Conoy, a unique riverfront moonscape of tailings from an old limestone quarry.

Views of Conewago Falls, river potholes and the York Haven Dam await visitors to the trail's northern trailhead at Falmouth, which is famous for its annual goat races.
